Venn Names Benjamin Steinberg to its Leadership Team

Steinberg, Who Helped Build the Firm's Thriving Critical Infrastructure Practice, is a Leading Global Expert and Business Strategist, and Former DOE and White House Official

WASHINGTON, DC — Venn Strategies, a nationally recognized public affairs and government relations firm, announced today that Benjamin Steinberg, its longstanding Executive Vice President and Chair of the Critical Infrastructure practice, has been appointed Principal and added to the firm's Management Team. He is the fifth member of the team, and the first to be invited to join in more than a decade.

Since Steinberg joined Venn in 2018, the firm— recognized by Inc. 5000 among the fastest-growing private U.S. companies — has more than doubled in size, to nearly 65 professionals today. Steinberg's work to help build the firm's world-class critical infrastructure practice has been a key driver of that growth. Before joining Venn, Steinberg spent nearly a decade, spanning the Obama and Trump administrations, at the U.S. Department of Energy (DOE), where he served, among other roles, as chief of staff for the Office of Energy Policy and Systems Analysis. He also served on the White House Council on Environmental Quality.

Stephanie Silverman, Venn's founder and CEO, said Steinberg was a key addition to the leadership table. "Ben exemplifies leadership, character and strategy – the traits that underlie our brand and our culture," she said. "He is a renowned subject matter expert consulted by organizations around the world on matters ranging from critical minerals policy to energy security. More than that, Ben is a trusted partner to clients, a visionary manager and someone who drives and demands results. There is no more impressive addition we could make to the management team."

Said Steinberg, "I'm grateful for the opportunity to step into this position and for the trust the management team has placed in me. I'm looking forward to continuing to grow this practice with our exemplary team and help lead the firm in a way that's thoughtful, collaborative, and focused on impact."

Steinberg will continue to chair the Critical Infrastructure practice, overseeing work across energy, transportation, environment, manufacturing, critical minerals, and national security. In his role as Principal, he will also assume broader management responsibilities to support firm-wide growth and expand Venn's reach in key sectors. In addition to Silverman, the other members of the Management Team are firm President Erik Olson, Noelle Montaño and Elizabeth Lee, both also Principals of the firm.
